DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 5,301,462 to Hronyetz.

Regarding Claim 1, Hronyetz teaches a Christmas tree stand having a base (#20 and 14) member, a tree-supporting post (#34) mounted on the base member and extending upwardly therefrom, a screw crank (Fig. 4) mounting opening in the upper end portion of the post, and a screw crank member (#32 and 24) having a screw thread section at one end and a hand crank at the opposite end, the screw thread section being insertable through said opening in the post for threaded insertion into the side of a tree trunk, the combination therewith of screw crank securing means on the base member for releasably securing the screw crank member to the base member for storage (Fig. 1 #24 and 20).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 5,522,177 to Davis in view of U.S. Patent No. 4,920,592 to Scott.

Regarding Claim 1, Davis teaches a Christmas tree stand having a base Davis #10) member, a tree-supporting post (Davis #12b) mounted on the base member and extending upwardly therefrom, a screw crank mounting opening (Davis #38) in the upper end portion of the post, and a screw crank member (Davis #42) having a screw thread section (Davis #40) at one end and a hand crank at the opposite end, the screw thread section being insertable through said opening in the post for threaded insertion into the side of a tree trunk (Davis T and Fig. 2).

Davis is silent on the combination therewith of screw crank securing means on the base member for releasably securing the screw crank member to the base member for storage. However, Scott teaches a crank securing means for a crank not in use (Scott Fig. 10 #210). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the teachings of Davis with the teachings of Scott at the time of the invention for efficient storage as taught by Scott (Scott Col. 2 line 5-25).

Regarding Claim 2, Davis as modified teaches the screw crank securing means includes a socket member (Scott #320) secured to the base member and configured to removably receive the screw thread section of the screw crank member, and a clip (Scott #250, 252) member secured to the base member and configured to releasably receive a portion of the screw crank member intermediate the screw thread section and the hand crank end thereof for releasably securing the screw crank member to the base member for storage.

Regarding Claim 5, Davis as modified teaches the screw crank member is bent intermediate the screw thread end and the handle end (Davis Fig. 2), the bend including an arcuate portion defining an anvil (Davis Fig. 2 the portion that figure #42 is pointing towards) aligned with the screw thread for striking by a hammer to set the screw thread into the side of a tree trunk.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

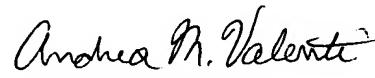

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
